

What Happened to Prudence?

At one time it seemed that almost every other word Prime Minister Gordon Brown uttered as Chancellor was prudence. Now we never hear it.

Yesterday in parliament the PM informed us that the prime source and crucible of terrorism is found in the Afghanistan/Pakistan border. It is ironic that at almost the same time in the House of Lords, Baroness Glenys Kinnock was informing the Lords that our counter-terrorism activities in Pakistan would have to be cut back because of the dramatic fall in the value of sterling.

This dichotomy has been brought about by our government's complete neglect of prudence, for during the years when they could have put aside reserves, they engaged in what we now know was a quite unnecessary war in Iraq, in preparation for which most of our gold reserves were sold off by Gordon Brown at a ridiculously low price, loosing us many billions.

Now, due to worldwide recession, we find ourselves deeper in debt than any other nation, but this makes little difference to our PM who delights in grandstanding on the world stage leading the 'climate change' brigade by promising the deepest and most expensive CO2 cuts, which can only cripple the finances and prosperity of our nation for generations to come.

Not that that worries our PM who is now promising more than most of Europe in aid to stricken Haiti, which is fine if we have the funds, but not so fine when we will have to borrow every last penny.

Prudent, Prime Minister? Why is it that we as a nation, much reduced from our glory days as an Empire, due to our rejection of God's Laws, still feel that we should punch well above our weight? Is it unwarranted pride that brings us to be magnanimous with that which we must then borrow? God, in a book of the Bible directed mainly to this nation [Ephraim] says 'Aliens have devoured his strength, but he does not know it; Yes grey hairs are here and there on him, yet he does not know it, and the pride of Israel [Ephraim is one of the 12 tribes] testifies to his face, but they do not return to the Lord their God, nor seek him for all this.' Hosea 7:9-10.

Maybe most won't, but you can – listen to "Choose Your Future" on the Home Page!

Genetics Prove Britain's origin!

Only this week the news broke that most Britons are direct descendants of farmers who left the Fertile Crescent in the Middle East (Israel, Syria, Iraq). By studying our DNA, researchers discovered what this website has revealed on it's Home Page for years, that the British and Irish (and the British Commonwealth nations and USA) are directly descended from Ancient Israel, many of whom had been carried into slavery to what is now Iraq by the ancient Assyrians.

Listen to the full story by playing 'Britain's Awesome Future' on our Home Page.